ADVISORY: "THE SPANISH ROOM to Screen at Festival Flamenco de Cortometrajes in Spain"

INCREDIBLE FILMS announces that THE SPANISH ROOM will compete at Festival Flamenco de Cortometrajes (FFLAC) in Madrid, Spain from December 8 to 11, 2011.

THE SPANISH ROOM is a feature length documentary about Yjastros: The American Flamenco Repertory Company, based out of the National Institute of Flamenco in downtown Albuquerque, New Mexico. The film focuses primarily on the extensive time and effort that goes into producing one of Yjastros' amazing shows, while also focusing on the many dedicated local people who give so much of their lives to improve their communities through flamenco.

THE SPANISH ROOM will screen as part of FFLAC's premiere Flamenco Feature Documentary competition. The objective of FFLAC is to promote the creation and diffusion of audio-visual projects that reflect the flamenco art form and its aesthetic forms of cultural, historical and artistic expression.

"I am honored that THE SPANISH ROOM has been chosen to compete at FFLAC as one of only eleven feature documentaries from around the world," said Writer-Director Christopher Michael Roybal. "I hope that the film's participation in the festival will help to further publicize the incredible flamenco being produced by Yjastros: The American Flamenco Repertory Company and the National Institute of Flamenco out of Albuquerque, New Mexico."
